

Seventh Grade Summer Reading [1/3]

June 15, 2009

Dear Students (and Parents),

Although the school year has just finished, it is time to start thinking about summer reading. This letter outlines expectations as you enter the seventh grade. The details should come as no surprise as we had several discussions over the past few weeks regarding which book to use as a shared read. Together we decided that 2003 Newbery Medal winner Crispin: The Cross of Lead by Avi would likely be an interesting read and also tie into our studies of the Middle Ages next fall.

In addition to Crispin you should also read the rough equivalent of 250 more pages of material that genuinely interests you, but that also has content which is unfamiliar to you and that is of an appropriate reading level. Your preference may be newspapers, magazines, comic books, non-fiction, audio books, biographies, novels, short stories, blogs, game guides, etc. Whatever your choice, keep a record of what you consume. The record might be a reading log, sketches of the ideas they contain, a series of digital photographs of book covers, a list of links to the Wikipedia or Amazon pages for the books, or something else that you invent.

Those are the same general reading expectations from last year with the exception that you will be expected to read fifty more pages worth of material this summer. You should use your classmates, parents, librarians, staff at bookstores, Shelfari, Amazon, and other resources for recommendations. As an additional reference I am also including below the same list of fiction that accompanied last summer's list.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions, for clarification, or if you would like a more personalized recommendation. Enjoy your reading and your summer.

Sincerely,

Rob Greco
rgreco@tcslj.org

PS: There is a sequel to our shared read named Crispin: At the Edge of the World. I mention this for two reasons: (1) to make sure that you get the correct book for the shared read and (2) to suggest that if you like the first book, the sequel might also be of interest to you.

Seventh Grade Summer Reading [2/3]

To get you started, here is a list of authors whose books are worth reading with the names of one or few of their books.

Lloyd Alexander (The Book of Three and The Black Cauldron)
Blue Balliett (Chasing Vermeer, The Wright Three, and The Calder Game)
Edward Bloor (Tangerine)
Elise Broach (Shakespeare's Secret)
Gennifer Choldenko (Al Capone Does My Shirts)
Andrew Clements (Frindle, Things Not Seen, and The Landry News)
Sharon Creech (Ruby Holler and Walk Two Moons)
Christopher Paul Curtis (The Watsons Go to Birmingham)
Kate DiCamillo (The Tale of Despereaux and Because of Winn-Dixie)
William Pene du Bois (The Twenty-One Balloons)
Edward Eager (Half Magic)
Eleanor Estes (The Moffats and Ginger Pye)
Jean Ferris (Once Upon a Marigold)
Paul Fleischman (Bull Run and Whirligig)
Cornelia Funke (The Thief Lord and Dragon Rider)
Jack Gantos (Joey Pigza and Jack Henry books)
Dan Gutman (Honus and Me)
Margaret Peterson Haddix (Running Out of Time)
Carl Hiaasen (Hoot)
Norton Juster (The Phantom Tollbooth)
Kate Klise (Regarding the Fountain)
Gordon Korman (No More Dead Dogs)
E.L. Konigsburg (From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler)
Walter Dean Meyers (Monster)
Gary Paulsen (Hatchet and Brian's Winter)
Richard Peck (A Long Way from Chicago and A Year Down Yonder)
Philip Pullman (I Was a Rat! and Count Karlstein)
Ellen Raskin (The Westing Game)
Philip Reeve (Larklight and Starcross)
John Ritter (The Boy Who Saved Baseball)
Louis Sachar (Holes)
Neal Shusterman (The Dark Side of Nowhere and Scorpion Shards)
Zilpha Keatley Snyder (The Egypt Game)
Jerry Spinelli (Loser, The Library Card, Wringer, and Maniac Magee)
Theodore Taylor (The Cay)
Wendelin Van Draanen (Flipped)
Deborah Wiles (Each Little Bird That Sings)

Seventh Grade Summer Reading [3/3]

If you are interested in reading books from a series, here are some to consider including several that you are likely familiar with already. Wikipedia has an entry for each of these series – just search for the series title.

The Lord of the Rings (3 books + The Hobbit) by J.R.R. Tolkein
The Chronicles of Narnia (7 books) by C.S. Lewis
Harry Potter (7 books) by J.K. Rowling
A Series of Unfortunate Events (13 books) by Lemony Snicket
The Spiderwick Chronicles (5 books, spin-offs as well) by Tony DiTerlizzi
Artemis Fowl Series (6 books) by Eoin Colfer
Dark Is Rising Sequence (5 books) by Susan Cooper
The Time Quartet (4 books starting with A Wrinkle in Time) by Madeleine L'Engle
His Dark Materials (3 books) by Philip Pullman
Shadow Children Sequence / Among the ___ (7 books) by Margaret Peterson Haddix
Underland Chronicles / Gregor the Overlander (5 books) by Suzanne Collins
The Inkworld Trilogy (3 books) by Cornelia Funke
Septimus Heap (5th book due September 29) by Angie Sage
Percy Jackson and the Olympians (5 books so far) by Rick Riordan
Books of Ember (4 books) by Jeanne Du Prau
Charlie Bone / Children of the Red King (8th book due in September) by Jenny Nimmo
The Inheritance Cycle / Eragon (3 books) by Christopher Paolini
Redwall (21st book due next year) by Brian Jacques

You may also enjoy some classic science fiction and adventure. Many of these books can be found for free from Project Gutenberg [gutenberg.org] and many are also available to download as free audio books from Librivox [librivox.org]. Other sites that host free e-books are ManyBooks [manybooks.net], Bookyards [bookyards.com], Wowio [wowio.com], and SchoolLibrary [schoollibrary.com].

The Time Machine by H.G. Wells
The War of the Worlds by H.G. Wells
The Invisible Man by H.G. Wells
Frankenstein by Mary Shelley
Around the World in Eighty Days by Jules Verne
The Mysterious Island by Jules Verne
Journey to the Center of the Earth by Jules Verne
Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea by Jules Verne
The Hound of the Baskervilles by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle